

Amy Yamada's Deep Connection Copy Formula:

11 Essential Steps to Writing a Marketing E-mail That Connects & Converts
plus a Sample E-mail Swipe File

GET CENTERED AND CONNECTED

Imagine the specific person you are writing to. Connect to him/her. What is he/she feeling and thinking? What is he/she most longing for (in his/her life, business, relationship, health, finances, etc., depending on your industry niche.)

WHAT DO YOU WANT THEM TO DO, AND WHAT'S IN IT FOR THEM?

What is the specific action you want them to take as or after they read the email? What is the specific benefit/result they will get from taking that action?

As you are writing....

SUBJECT LINE
MAKE IT SOUND PERSONAL, AS IF YOU'RE WRITING TO A FRIEND.

Subject: Question for you...

Hey Carrie!

OPENING LINE
THIS LINE WILL DETERMINE IF PEOPLE WILL CONTINUE READING. IT NEEDS TO SOUND PERSONAL AND CONNECTED.

I'm doing a quick survey and wanted to know if I can ask you a personal (and somewhat vulnerable) question...

My question is this: When was the last time you felt beautiful and amazing in your own body?

INSPIRE & INTRIGUE
SHARE A STORY, ASK A QUESTION, SHARE A FAVORITE QUOTE.

At dinner tonight, my colleague and dear friend Amy and I were chatting, and she really opened up to me about how she doesn't remember the last time she felt great in her own skin. Amy is such a beautiful person, from the inside out... but she shared something with me that I have heard so many times from the women in my community:

INSERT A DEEP CONNECTION STATEMENT

"I hate to admit it... Every single day, at some point, I think about my own body -- and I feel FAT."

WHAT'S MY POINT?
TELL THEM WHY YOU ARE TELLING THEM THIS AND SHOW UNDERSTANDING.

I share this because I realize you have been wanting to FINALLY lose those unwanted pounds and know that if you could just establish consistent daily action, you would be in such a better place.

TRANSITION TO THE SOLUTION

For this reason, my team and I are committed to helping women just like Amy (and you, if you can relate!) to finally feel beautiful and fit in your own body---- sooooo, we are opening up our online office hours to serve YOU!
